

Dr. S.K. Singh, (Pro-Vice-Chancellor)

DHM, MTM, Ph.D.

Dr. S.K. Singh is a seasoned hospitality professional with a distinguished academic and industry background. Holding a doctorate, he began his career in the hotel industry as a professional chef, honing expertise in both culinary operations and management. Over the course of more than eight years in the hospitality sector, he rose to the role of operational manager before transitioning into academia. Throughout his 32-year career spanning both academic and industry domains, Dr. Singh has developed extensive skills in operational planning, institutional management, policy development, strategic planning, and fostering a conducive academic environment.

Dr. Singh is an active contributor to academic and professional bodies, serving as a member of advisory boards and boards of studies across various universities. His involvement includes curriculum design, faculty development, student development, academic collaborations, and corporate relations.

A prolific author, Dr. Singh has published research papers, moderated national and international conferences, and authored four books. He has also led teacher training programs focused on new-age pedagogy, Outcome-Based Education (OBE), and instructional strategies. A lifelong learner, Dr. Singh remains deeply invested in exploring and implementing innovative teaching methodologies to enhance educational outcomes.